Dear Sir Have quite a collection of old coins which I wish to dispose of as am rather hard up.

I have one of much sought for 1913 nickels (no Buffalo) and one of the 1894 dimes. These coins appear to be the exact duplicates of those shown in a folder given out by the Numismatic Co. Fort Worth and they offer $50 and $250 respectively.
I have a lot of other coins some no doubt very valuable and others not so. If interested kindly reply at once or if you know of anyone who wants some real rare coins will you kindly put me in touch with them and greatly oblige

Yours truly
Fred Hayward

Dear Sir:

I note in your letter you say you have a 1913 nickel with buffalo. I think you must be in error about this as only six were struck and it is known where all of them are. The rare piece should have a Roman "V" on the back and a liberty head on the front, not Indian head. An 1894 dime should have a small "s" under the wreath on the reverse. If it does not have this small "s", it is worth only 10%. One cannot quote prices without seeing the pieces.

Very truly yours,
